

KEEP 'EM FLYING WARBIRDS

APRIL 2006

VOL. 29, NO. 3

contents

Mid-Atlantic Air Museum's P-61 is rolled on its gear for the first time in more than 50 years.

RUSSELL STRINE

in this issue

12 National Warbird Operator Conference Concludes in Orlando

by Bill Fischer

16 From the Coffee Pot to the Cockpit

Driving a jetliner or her T-6, Kitty Sue Smith followed her dreams
by Jack Morrissey

20 East Meets West: A Pilot's Impression of Two Former Adversaries

Hellcat versus Zero
by Dave Morss

26 Northrop P-61 "Black Widow"

Restoration Project
from the Mid Atlantic Air Museum

32 Floating Museum Showcases Naval Aviation and Space History

Eighth ship to bear the name Hornet preserved
by Jack Morrissey and Sherry Dittmer

columns

- |    |                                     |    |                    |
|----|-------------------------------------|----|--------------------|
| 2  | Director's Update                   | 14 | Book Review        |
| 3  | Mail Call                           | 44 | Mystery Warbird    |
| 4  | Warbird News                        | 47 | Supply Depot       |
| 10 | The Way It Wasby Robert F. Dorr | 48 | Calendar of Events |

Front Cover: The Air Museum—Planes of Fame's A6M Zero captured by Paul Bowen. Pilot Dave Morss compares both types beginning on page 20.

Center Spread: Wearing Royal Navy markings, The Air Museum—Planes of Fame's F6F Hellcat shot by Paul Bowen

Back Cover: Three F9C Sparrowhawks pass over Naval Air Station's Hangar One in late 1933. The Navy wants to tear-down this monument to naval lighter-than-air aviation. The debate over Hangar One will be featured in the June issue.